

NINE ARE BURNED TO DEATH NEAR CONFLUENCE

Fire Wipes Out Entire Family Of Samuel Rosso, a Farmer

Five Trunks Removed From Ruins at Noon and Belief Is That All Others Are There or in Ashes—Children Range in Age From 10 Years to Babe of Month—Rescuers Find House Raging Furnace When They Reach Scene.

CONFLUENCE, Nov. 26.—Nine persons, father and mother and seven children are believed to have perished when fire at an early hour this morning destroyed the home of Samuel Rosso, a farmer, on Anderson Hill, about a mile from Confluence.

At noon the remains of five bodies had been raked from the ruins.

The dead are Mr. Rosso, 35; his wife, 28, and their seven children ranging in ages from 10 years to one month.

Local firemen about 1:30 o'clock were aroused and a number of persons hurried to the scene. The place is not easily accessible and when they reached the farm the house was a furnace, with no possibility of saving it or rescuing the inmates. Nor was it possible to determine where the fire had started.

The bodies recovered are believed to include those of the father and mother and baby. Just which of the children are the other two cannot be determined. It is not thought that any more bodies will be removed, the bodies being they were so badly consumed that no further remains will be found.

Mr. Rosso was a farmer who moved to Anderson Hill about two years ago. His wife was an American, a Miss Woodmancy, daughter of William Woodmancy. Her mother was married to John Woodmancy and now lives here.

For a number of years Rosso was employed as a section hand on the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad. He later was a miner.

The family was well-known in the locality.

There are two theories as to the fire. One is that the building was set afire. It is current rumor about town that lights were seen flashing about the house during the night.

Another theory is that the blaze started from a stove that was set to have been placed flat on the floor without legs. Persons who had been to the home before the fire recalled the stove sitting on the floor.

The remains of the bodies were being taken to the undertaking establishment of C. B. Humphert.

KLAN DENIES SENDING NOTE TO LENHARTS

Members of Organization Make Visit to South Side Home.

Denying that the Ku Klux Klan had sent the threatening letter received last week by Mrs. H. L. Lenhart, warning her against proceeding with the construction of a garage in Race street, stating that if she did not abandon plans at once the garage and her home would both be blown up, a delegation of that organization visited the Lenhart home in Vine street last night.

Just how many were in the party of Klansmen was not disclosed. They went to the Lenhart residence about 7:30 o'clock and held a lengthy conference with the family.

The spokesman was not recognized by any person. He told Mrs. Lenhart the purpose of the Klan was not to destroy property and that the letter had not been sent by its Vigilance Committee. He pointed out that neither Klan stationery or envelopes had been used and assured her that the organization had no notion of bringing harm to her or members of the family.

The visit of the Klansmen followed the burning of the fiery cross on a hill near Wheeler on Saturday night. While not so stated by the representative who addressed the Lenharts many people think the Klan meeting was called for the purpose of discussing the letter. It is also reported that the Klan plans a full investigation of the matter.

Mrs. Lenhart is not a strong woman, having been under the care of a physician for a long time. She was greatly upset by the receipt of the letter and in order that she may not be left alone until she recovers from the shock her husband, H. L. Lenhart, a Baltimore & Ohio railroad, has been indefinitely relieved from duty.

Exhausted by loss of sleep since receipt of the letter, Mrs. Lenhart was slumbering on a couch in a downstairs room of her home when the fiery cross was burning on the Wheeler hill Saturday night. Neighbors who saw it could not awaken her by knocking at the door and she did not know of the occurrence until Sunday morning.

Mrs. Lenhart is now satisfied that the letter was sent her by some person who used the name of the Klan to intimidate her.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 26.—Eight men are dead from drinking poison liquor, 100 are in hospitals under treatment for acute alcoholism and more than 500 are under arrest for drunkenness in a record-breaking week-end liquor drinking orgy.

REDUCING COST OF DYING BY PAYING FOR FUNERAL IN ADVANCE

YORK, Pa., Nov. 26.—York has a number of citizens who are making preparations for death. One of the leading funeral directors said today it is not rare for him to show sample patterns of caskets, shrouds and other materials essential in a modern funeral.

In making choice the customer usually selects everything desired with the exception of the date of the funeral and it is customary to make payments on account and some times of the entire bill.

One undertaker has a number of orders which have been standing for years where persons selected their coffin, trimmings and shroud. In these cases interest is accruing on the money invested for their "funeral" is credited to their account. In that manner it is pointed out, some persons, not looked upon by the funeral director as pessimists are reducing the cost of their death.

Tornado Sunday Football Case Is Dismissed

Holding that prosecution had failed to establish a case, Alderman J. J. Michael of Uniontown today dismissed the case of the Connellsville Ministerial Association against the members of the Tornado football team and others involved in Sunday games on Limestone Hill.

There were two charges, conspiracy and breach of the peace. The allegation held that there was no evidence of conspiracy and that the Commonwealth had failed to show that the peace had been disturbed.

Testimony was taken during the morning in an action brought by the ministers before Alderman Matt Allen of Uniontown. After several witnesses had been heard the case was adjourned until Friday evening, owing to the absence of a witness. All but six members of the team appeared.

"King" of West Indian Rum Runners Captured By Federal Officers

W. B. McCoy Aboard British Schooner Overhauled Outside Three-Mile Limit.

BEHEVED VITAL BLOW

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—Federal agents today believed they had struck a vital blow at the West Indian rum running traffic. Nine men were brought before Assistant Solicitor of the Port Edward H. Burkes during the day for questioning before being arraigned in New Jersey before a United States commissioner on a charge of transporting liquor into the United States.

The men include W. B. McCoy, said by federal agents to be the "king" of the West Indian rum runners.

McCoy and his companions were caught yesterday outside the three-mile limit when boats of the Coast Guard and Revenue Cutter service overhauled the British schooner Tomako and seized 200 cases of whiskey which they said was the remainder of 4,000 cases the ship had brought from Nassau, Bahamas Islands.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—Immediate detailed report on the pursuit and capture of the British rum runner Tomako were called for today by the Coast Guard, the Customs and Prohibition service here following news the vessel was seized beyond the three-mile limit at sea. Until detailed reports are available officials said there would be no comment on the exploit of the cutters Soneca and Lexington which captured the Tomako and brought it to New York.

State Department officials engaged in negotiations with London over the proposed extension of American jurisdiction to the 12-mile limit said they had no opinion when asked if the incident might adversely affect the negotiations. They also were interested, however, in getting the exact facts about the Tomako's location, the time the cutters sighted her and when she was captured.

COAL PRODUCTION DOWN TO 10,500,000 TONS WEEK NOV. 24

Was Slight Gain Over Armistice Week: Output of Beehive Coke Consumption Steadily Declines.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—The weekly report of the United States Geological Survey shows that the observance of Armistice Day was largely responsible for a sharp drop in the production of soft coal in the week ended November 17. The total output, including coal coked at the mines, mine fuel, and local sales, is estimated at 9,442,000 net tons. This was a decrease of 1,642,000, or 9.7 per cent, from the output of the week ended November 10.

Final returns on coal loaded by the railroads in October indicate that the total output for the month was approximately 43,171,000 net tons. This estimate includes mine fuel, local sales and coal coked at the mines. Comparison with production in September shows an increase of 2,956,000 tons, which was due largely to the greater number of working days in October.

The production of beehive coke continues to decline steadily. The total output in the week ended November 17 is estimated at 246,000 net tons as against 255,000 tons in the preceding week. The principal factor in the decline was a decrease of 8,000 tons in Pennsylvania and Ohio production in the Connellsville region, according to The Courier, decreased from 181,920 to 173,920 tons.

Production by states, compared with the corresponding week of 1922, was as follows:

State	1923	1922
Pennsylvania and Ohio	198,000	200,000
West Virginia	14,000	20,000
Alabama, Kentucky, Tennessee and Georgia	17,000	20,000
Virginia	10,000	9,000
Colorado and New Mexico	5,000	6,000
Washington and Utah	5,000	5,000
U. S. Total	246,000	255,000

Company Officials Insist Practically All Escaped, While Stories of Workmen Place Number Remaining Underground at Close to 500.

By United Press.
CHICAGO, Ill., Nov. 26.—The bodies of two men, badly burned and crushed, were taken from the shaft of the Chicago, Wilmington & Franklin Coal Company mine near here this afternoon.

Eight, seriously injured, were taken to hospitals. Attempts to estimate the number of men still in the mine, following a gas explosion, met with little success in the confusion about the mouth of the pit.

While company officials insisted that practically all the men had been accounted for, rumors passed quickly about the crowd that at least 500 were still trapped in the workings. Those who could talk told of terrible sufferings and narrow escapes by workers who retained the presence of mind and resorted to safety measures.

A first aid station has been established at the company's offices where treatment is administered the injured men before being sent to the hospital.

Twelve are in hospitals, badly burned. The size of the mine and its record output caused exaggerated rumors, Harrington said. The explosion occurred in a room in the northwest corner of the mine, with 922 men in the shaft. The "check" system showed at noon that all but 14 were accounted for.

By United Press.
BERLIN, Nov. 26.—General Von Seeckt, Germany's unofficial dictator, will be the power behind the government of Dr. Brüning, the latest to try his hand at the helm of the floundering ship of state, succeeds in forming a cabinet. Von Seeckt's power is growing.

It is understood that President Ebert, before inviting Dr. Brüning to form a ministry, consulted the general as to whether the former minister of the treasury in the Cuno cabinet would be acceptable. Dr. Albert prior to the entry of the United States into the war was German fiscal agent there.

It is understood he agreed to accept the chancellorship, only on condition he shall have a mandate enabling him to dissolve the Reichstag at any time if he should resort to this extreme. Dr. Albert would nominally remain head of the government but actually the power would revert to the military ordinance and Von Seeckt.

The press is lukewarm in its greeting to the proposed chancellor.

"AMERICA NEVER WARS UPON CHILDREN"

An appeal is shortly to be made to the American people which will test their ability and willingness to forget some of the atrocities of the World War and present opportunity for them to reveal the elasticity of the religion they profess and to show their generosity in a most worthy cause.

General Henry T. Allen, who served as a commanding officer of the American Army of Occupation in Germany, has accepted the chairmanship of the American Committee for Relief of German Children which, in cooperation with the American Friends for Quakers Service Committee, is conducting a larger scale of the task of providing food and making distribution of supplies in feeding the starving children of Germany, who number in the millions.

In announcing his acceptance of the chairmanship of this committee, General Allen declared that he did so "because my experience as head of the American Representation on the Rhine for four years and my observations during a recent visit to Germany convince me that starvation faces Germany's unfortunates, children this winter. Under these conditions it seemed imperative for me to accept."

Since the Armistice the Friends, or Quakers, of America have been conducting an extensive relief program, distributing over $12,000,000 worth of food in Germany in addition to their work in France during the war and in Poland, Austria and Russia since then. The demands being greater than this organization can alone adequately meet, and becoming greater every day, the joint committee of which General Allen has been made the chief, has been organized for the purpose of making still larger resources available to the Quakers who will have exclusive charge of relieving the suffering and preventing loss of life among the unfortunate children in Germany.

In this emergency, which is great, the American people should no longer remember that Germany was no recently our enemy in a great war, but should allow themselves to be influenced only by that broad charity which has always made us, as a people, ready to respond to the cry of distress no matter whence or by whom it is uttered. Each of us should unreservedly subscribe to the sentiment contained in the truth uttered by General Allen when he said: "America never wars upon women and children."

FORD AS "A CHRONICLER OF NEGLECTED TRUTH"

The Dearborn Independent, Henry Ford's newspaper, boasts that it is "a chronicle of neglected truth." For months it published distorted, false and misrepresentations about the Jews whom the editor charged with having formed a conspiracy to mortgage the earth. Just now this prejudiced and biased publication is trying to cast suspicion upon the present management of the United States Shipping Board which is trying desperately hard to make the best of the worst mismanagement of government enterprise ever undertaken by any government.

The Administration inherited the extravagantly constructed fleet of merchant vessels from the Wilson Administration. But it was President Wilson who induced Ford to run for United States Senator, so, of course, Ford is not telling any "neglected truths" about the former administration. Perhaps that truth has been so long neglected that Ford thinks it is history, and to Ford "history is bunk."

The most casual reading of the articles in Ford's paper dealing with the Shipping Board reveals their unfairness and gross discrimination. If, as these articles allege, the present management of the board is spending money unwisely, such expenditure is not worthy to be mentioned in the same breath with the amount spent with unrestrained prodigality, and in defiance of every principle of good business by the board under the Wilson Administration. If the present management is wasting money, the waste is an infinitesimal part of the waste under the Wilsonian management of the Shipping Board Trust Corporation.

In light of previous screeds published by Ford he plainly has no intention of trying to be either truthful or fair in his discussion of the present Shipping Board management. He is merely continuing his crusade against the people of a race and religion and whenever opportunity presents he purposes continuing his assaults upon every person or enterprise bearing the remotest of that race.

Short Talks on Advertising

By Charles Austin Bates

NO. 12—"JUST AS GOOD."
 How often have we bought the "just as good" thing—and how often has it been just as good?
 When it talked, or tipped, or didn't wear, or didn't work what redress has it? After we tossed with an earnest (maybe) and threw it away, we went and got a trade-marked, advertised article which is what we should have done in the first place.
 A man doesn't put his name or his trade-mark on his product unless he is proud of it. He is as jealous of its reputation as he is of his own—just exactly. He guarantees it whether he says so or not. And if it does not give satisfaction he is sure to be worried about that. He should be worried because if enough of us are dissatisfied we can put him out of business.
 Every time he places his trade-mark on an article and every time he spends a dollar to advertise it, he is buying insurance for you and me—insurance of quality, of service, of satisfaction.

Do you realize that when your local merchant advertises a trade-marked article in your newspaper, you are getting a triple guarantee. The merchant, the maker, and the publisher all have a part in it. Because of this triple assurance, advertised goods are sold easily, quickly and in great quantities. Quantity production makes low factory cost. Quick sales, without argument, reduce the merchant's cost. Quick sales, without argument, reduce the merchant's cost of serving you. These savings are several times as great as the cost of the advertising, without which they could not be realized.

Advertising is a business machine which makes things doing business, and like your sewing machine, pays for itself over and over again by the savings it makes possible.

The merchant who does not advertise is just about as wise as the housewife who does all her sewing by hand. Both of them choose the slow, hard, expensive way of doing things.

PRESIDENTIAL ASPIRANTS

(Lawrence Martin, Washington manager of the United Press and recognized as one of the best political writers of the country, has prepared a series of sketches of the principal candidates for nomination for President at the Democratic and Republican conventions which will meet next June to name their respective standard bearers. The Democratic candidates form the first group of the series.)

SAMUEL RALSTON.

(United Press Staff Correspondent)
 Copyrighted 1923 by The United Press
 WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—A modest, quiet man who looks like Grover Cleveland and who stands high in the estimation of the people of Indiana, is coming to the United States Senate in December. When the next Democratic national convention meets he may be promoted to the national leadership of his party as its Presidential nominee.

He is Samuel Ralston, nowadays regarded in political circles hereabouts as the most likely man now in sight to upset the Presidential apple carts of Underwood and McAdoo.
 Ralston is not in any hurry to push himself forward as a candidate. Indeed, he has ordered some of his friends, who say, to forbear organizing in his behalf at this time. They have, to a degree at least, admitted the sound sense of his reasoning, and the Ralston candidacy will not be nudged by any early frosts.

Political judgment, matured by many years of observation and experience in one of the most politically active states in the union, tells Ralston that the thing for him to do is to take his seat in December in the Senate and let others expend their time, energy and money-building organizations, corraling delegates—who won't stay put—and otherwise kicking up the political dust.

Why, he has argued to some of those who wanted to set out in competition with the McAdoo and Underwood organizations, why go scrambling for a job when the people have just elected me to one place of great dignity and honor? Why risk, for ambition's sake, destroying the prestige built up through years on a solid foundation of ability and devotion to duty to chase the butterfly that may, later on, be had in a much more dignified way?
 Ralston, you see, is somewhat of a fastidious man in his notions of duty and propriety. He has been sent to the Senate by the people of his state. Very well! His duty is to go there and serve them as well as he can. If a call comes for higher service, wait and good. But—and this is one of his political maxims—no politician ever helps himself, his party or his people by over-reaching himself.

Lusk is no longer chairman of the board, his policies are still followed. It may be Ford's privilege to make war upon the Jews, and the general public will feel little interest until, as now develops, he lets his prejudices manifest themselves in his discussion of public affairs. When he lets his war upon the Jews color his presentation of facts about government business, then the matter becomes of more than personal and sectarian interest—it involves the public welfare.
 If Ford will show as much zeal in disclosing the mismanagement of the Shipping Board during the period of its Democratic control as he is now showing in an effort to discredit the present management, he may have success in convincing the public that he has the real desire to be fair in his self-appointed mission as "a chronicler of neglected truth."

PERFECT SAUSAGE
Tender, Savory and Good

White Lily Sausage for Dinner

To make excellent sausage like White Lily, great care is necessary and an exact formula must be followed—that is why White Lily always tastes the same—has the same delightful aroma and flavor.

This is secured by using only the tender ham and loin cuttings from the same young porkers from which White Lily Ham is taken. These are carefully graded, spiced and seasoned and the meat is then ground to a specified consistency. All ingredients are weighed—not guessed at—and thus White Lily Sausage is one of our featured products—not simply a by-product as sausage is regarded by many packers.

No artificial coloring or casing—and every pack Government inspected. Look for country style as you prefer—your dealer will supply you.

MOTHERS AND THEIR CHILDREN

To Waken Children. One Mother Says: I always endeavor to waken my children gently. A little pat or conversation is less alarming to a person in a sound sleep than a sudden call or shock. To be suddenly called back from dreamland by the ringing of a phone or alarm clock awakes the nerves of an adult and certainly must be fully as upsetting to a child.

Small and Mrs. William Griffiths, with Mrs. J. H. Lamberton at the organ, sang "Some Time We'll Understand," "Asleep in Jesus," and "Abide With Me." The funeral was one of the largest held in the community of Dunbar in recent months, the chapel being filled with relatives and friends. The floral tributes were many and beautiful. The casket was draped with an American flag.

Starts When 14 And Marries 14 Times to 12 Men

By United Press.
EAST ST. LOUIS, Ill., Nov. 25.—Mrs. Cora La Forge, 43, famous in these parts as a "hook," is living here happily with her fourteenth husband. She has been married fourteen times since the age of 14. One marriage was annulled, the other twelve severed by divorces. She has been married to twelve different men, one man, Albert Lilley, having tried to make a success of matrimony with her three times.

Henry La Forge is her present husband. She met him in August, just after she separated from Alexander Yates. She went with him steadily for two months, for her experience has taught her to become well acquainted with a man before marrying him. They were married late in October, two days after "Mrs. Yates" got her divorce.

All of her divorces were secured in St. Clair county. She formerly conducted a boarding house here so successfully that men swarmed to get in on her cooking.

Mrs. La Forge, who originally was Miss Cora Walker, at the age of 14 married Joseph Truxler, a farm hand (when he worked), but the girl-wife was forced to take out the living by working in the berry fields, she told the judge.

Her names, by marriages, consecutively, were Truxler, Joyce, Barnes, Butcher, Crow, Whitney, Wiley, Porter, Lilley, Swanson, Lilley, Yates and La Forge.

The second husband was divorced after he had been given a jail sentence for stealing a pig. John Whitney was divorced because he had an ungovernable temper, which he showed by chasing her daughter by a previous marriage around a cornfield with a shotgun.

Sherman Porter was next, but he went the way of his predecessors when he lost money his wife earned in running a rooming house in horse trading. There was something of a sense of humor about Porter, for it is said that he wrote his former spouse a note of sympathy after one of her subsequent divorces. Albert Lilley was the next, but he left town when Porter threatened action because they hadn't waited long enough. This marriage was annulled.

Lilley didn't return when the legal period was up, and William Swanson made the trip to the altar. When Swanson was divorced, Lilley became the next husband, however. In due course of time Lilley was divorced, but effected a reconciliation and married her for the third time, and was again divorced.

Mrs. La Forge got her last matrimonial liberty bond when the court divorced her from Alexander Yates. Her wedding with La Forge brings the tale up to date.

The undisputed marriage-and-divorce champion is keeping house. She says she doesn't care if her husband is a Catholic and she isn't; that he says that one can feel and not religious without a lot of fuss about it, and that that's all that makes any difference.

CEILING WHACKS

Willie Jones, the office boy, had a poor memory. One day his employer sent him upon an errand to the stationery store.

Entering the shop, Willie turned to the man behind the counter and remarked with a puzzled expression: "I can't remember what it was the boss sent me for."

"Look around," suggested the clerk. "Perhaps you will see it on one of our shelves."

At that moment the man noticed a number of flies on the ceiling. Seeing a broom, he made one swipe and the flies disappeared.

"Ah, I have it," exclaimed the boy. "Ceiling whacks."

"At one time or another he's looked down on everyone in the place." "What, that shabby fellow?" "To be sure—he's the stepladder of the town."

DETOUR

So long as there are roads to drive to—detours and take. So long as motorists are alive. There will be detours we must make.

At the Theatres

The Paramount

"WHAT FOOLS MEN ARE," on view today and tomorrow at this theatre, presents Fairs Binney, supported by an all star cast, in the stellar role. Eugene Walter tells a typical story of a happier who played fast and loose with convention and whose adventures, we suspect, are repeated in many communities today. She goes just so far and then when all is seemingly lost, she proves what the happy always say of themselves, good and observe the rules of fair play. Peggy Kendrick (played by Fairs Binney) is a society flapper who allows her brother-in-law to pay for her clothes while his wife remains ignorant of what is happening in her own home. She discovers the truth, however, and names her sister in her divorce proceedings. It is understood that the brother-in-law will marry Peggy when he is free, but Peggy marries elsewhere—the son of a wealthy conservative who despises flappers and looks upon Peggy as the worst of them all. He offers her money to leave his son, which Peggy accepts—and promptly gives it to her husband to put him on his feet. More than this, she reconciles her divorced sister to the husband who has always loved her and eventually wins her husband's father.

Wednesday and Thursday, "One Million in Jewels" will be shown.

The Soisson

"THE LAST HOUR"—A seven-reel picture featuring Milton Sills and Carmel Myers, is on view today, Tuesday and Wednesday at this theatre. "The Last Hour" deals with two brothers, one of whom at the opening of the story returns from South America where he has amassed a fortune and the other who has broken into the local bank and is about to leave the country with his ill wife.

The story goes on with the subsequent career of the older brother who in spite of his desire to lead a normal honest life is entangled in a series of misadventures so compelling and effective that the "Last Hour" at but reminds you of the greatest of all photoplays in recent years—"The Miracle Man."

Nevertheless the story is quite different and certainly it is most dramatic and truthful we have seen in local theatres for many months. Besides Mr. Sills and Miss Myers the cast consists of Pat O'Malley, Jack Mower, Alec Francis, Charles Cary, Walter Long, Eric Mayne and Wilson Hummel.

"The Last Hour" will cause many a conscience to wring with pain. It will bring up old memories that were thought forgotten long ago. It will create old visions anew, it will resurrect the past, show up the real present and unfold the possible paths of the future.

Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Wesley Barry, the young boy actor will be shown.

The Orpheum

"THREE AGES"—With Buster Keaton in the title role, opened today at this theatre for a three-day attraction.

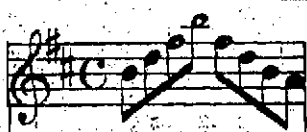

"Three Ages" is classed as a burlesque on love, marriage and business. Beginning with primitive man Keaton depicts vividly the life of the cave man era and then swings into the triumphant period of the Roman Empire. Here there are several humorous scenes, principally among which is a duplication of the famous coliseum. Several thousand people participate in this scene where Keaton makes a brilliant hit as a Roman noble matched in a chariot race with an "envied rival."

The modern age comes in for its bit also as it is Keaton's purpose to show how little human nature has changed in the course of the centuries. Apparently inventive ingenuity has changed little, too, for Keaton's remarkable satire is based on a duplication of scenes and events in these three far-flung settings.

Keaton leaves lightly for the centuries. In each age the dominant note is comedy. "Three Ages" is said to be the funniest picture Keaton has ever made, and in addition is a great departure from the beaten track of screen stories.

Margaret Locky, the English girl who came to Hollywood under the patronage of Norma Talmadge after she had been acclaimed England's most beautiful woman in competition with 30,000 English girls, appears opposite Buster Keaton in "Three Ages."

Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Gloria Swanson will be seen in "Zaza."

"Dreamy Melody"

is a smooth-flowing, tuneful, waltz soothingly sung by the Shannon Four and entrancingly played as a dance by the Columbia Dance Orchestra on Columbia Records.

A Girl at 62

Because of a French-type clay
By Edna Wallace Hopper

For 40 years I have been a famous beauty. I am a youthful beauty still. On the stage I play young girls' parts, and I look like a girl of 19.

Many years ago French experts taught me the use of clay. This clay multiplied my beauty—made me the rage of New York.

Then came the crude and muddy, as many clays are still. Since then, French experts have perfected clay. They have made it white and clean, and dainty. They have added factors which bring manifold effects.

I now use that perfected clay, and call it my White Youth Clay. I am an example of what that new-type clay does for a woman of 62.

You Must Use Clay.
No girl or woman who cares for beauty can now omit her clay. No girl can look her best without it, no woman can keep her youth. The users of clay, with their rosy, clear complexion, stand out in every crowd.

Clay purges the skin of all that clogs it—the causes of sallowness, blackheads and blemishes. It brings blood to the skin to nourish and revive it. The result is that rosy afterglow which so amazes and delights. Clay makes plain girls beautiful. And older women, in 30 minutes, seem to drop ten years.

Clay firms the skin, combats all lines and wrinkles, reduces enlarged pores. Look at me—a miracle of old-age youth. That could never have come without clay.

The Best Is Yours.

Now I bring you this new-type clay which France perfected for me. If you are a clay user, the multiplied results will amaze you. If you don't use clay, the quick results will astound you.

You owe to yourself a test.
Edna Wallace Hopper's White Youth Clay is supplied by all druggists and toilet counters. Price, 50c and $1 per tube. Also my Youth Cream which should follow the clay. Also my Facial Youth—my famous liquid cleanser. Also my Hair Youth, which brings my luxuriant hair. My Beauty Book comes with each.

I am doing this to serve you—to bring you greater beauty, longer youth. Do learn how much they mean to you, starting with my Youth Clay. Edna Wallace Hopper. Business address, Waukegan, Wis.

NOTE—Miss Hopper is now playing the Pantages Vaudeville circuit of the Western States.—Advertisement.

MARIE GREAT HELP TO HER

Mother Could Do Washing for Eleven So Easy When Girl Played Ukulele.

Unselfish mothers too often make or permit their daughters to be selfish, more the pity. One such mother, according to a story that Booth Tarkenton likes to tell, was bending industriously over the washbasin when a neighbor said to her, "Hard at it as usual, ain't it?"

"Yes," replied the mother cheerfully. "Yes, this is wash day, Mrs. O'Hoolahan, and washin' for eleven don't leave you much spare time on your hands."

"Is that Marie I hear singin' to the ukulele in the parlor?"

Marie, by the way, was in infancy christened Mary and in early youth was always known as Mollie.

"Yes, Mrs. O'Hoolahan, that's her. The help she is to me! Oh, dear! Oh, dear! I don't know how I'd get along without that girl! Every Monday morning she gets out the ukulele or spins up the piano, and while I'm scrubbin' the clothes, she sings the nicest, cheerin'est pieces, like 'Mother's Day,' or 'Dear Mother, in Dreams I See You,' or 'Lighten Mother's Tasks With Love,' and the work just rolls off like play. I tell you, Mrs. O'Hoolahan, there ain't many girls like our Marie."

—Youth's Companion.

Having It Both Ways.
The head of a girl with red hair, painted with charm and great dexterity, caught my eye. The picture was in that interesting gallery, the Rue de la Boetie, and I was tempted to enter the shop and asked the price. The price was so high that I remarked on it.

The dealer smiled in agreement. "But you see," he explained, "the painter is dead. Finished. There can be no more of his work, and therefore it costs much."

I made a tour of the walls and found another picture, this time a landscape, very simple but true and beautifully composed. It was signed "Grosjean." I asked the price of it also, and as with the other the price was so high that I remarked on it.

The dealer smiled in agreement. "But you see," he explained, "the painter is alive and living is expensive. It is necessary therefore to charge much."—Punch.

New Excuse.
Boss—What's the matter with you waiting today—new pen, new ink, new kind of paper or—
Clerk—No, sir, neuritis.

Getting Tired.
"We must practice economy."
"I've been hearing that for ten years. I don't mind practicing, but when do we graduate?"

Great Responsibility.
"What is a press censor, pop?"
"Why, a press censor, my son, is a man who knows more than he thinks other people should."

On the Young Man.
Edith—How is it that you get so many joy rides?
Madge—Oh, I practice auto suggestion.

The New Word.
"What do they call it now when you live decently?"
"Inhibited, my dear."

Vigorous Old Age

WHY separate youth and old age with a deep and over-widening abyss?

The bloom of youth and the healthy, rosy glow of old age—youth and old age—should be separated only by the span of years and not by varying differences of physical wholeness.

Vigorous old age is within the grasp of all. S. S. S. brings that hale and hearty feeling back with a rush. Rich red blood is the greatest enemy of weakening health undermining Old Age. S. S. S. builds Red Blood Cells. Rich, red blood coursing through your veins sweeps away impurities that retard the proper functioning of your system. Old Age—once a dreaded agony becomes a vigorous, enjoyable, care free time of life.

S. S. S. is made of carefully selected herbs and herbs—scientifically prepared and proportioned. Welcome Old Age when it comes. Do ready to withstand the attacks of diseases that follow in its wake. Meet Old Age with a hearty handshake. A handshake that speaks of well being—a vigorous, clear thinking, red blooded constitution. S. S. S. is your best friend when Old Age is soon rounding the corner. Get a bottle and drive care and worry away. All leading drug stores carry it.

The large size is the more economical.

Greensburg High Wins From Cokers; Rusnack Makes Locals' Score

Star Halfback Gets Forward;
Falls Over Goal Line;
Later Injured.

After getting away to a wonderful start in the game with Greensburg High School Saturday afternoon Connelville High broke after Rusnack had been lifted because of a dislocated shoulder and Captain Knox was elected together with Kurtz of Greensburg when they engaged in rough tactics. The Cokers did not display the fight with which they had opened the game nor that with which they battled against Latrobe and Monessen. Had they shown the same spirit Saturday it is likely a different story would have been told as Greensburg has no "steam-roller" eleven this season.

The final result of the game was 28-6, favoring the Westmoreland county school. Connelville got the first touchdown of the game and then held the visitors to two in the first half. Some long runs and beautifully executed forward passes added Greensburg in making big gains and scoring of two more touchdowns before the second half was well under way. With this sudden attack tending to disrupt the Coker ranks the boys gathered themselves together again and once more made it a good game to watch. The locals opened up on their own forward passes and executed quite a number of them.

The game opened with the locals receiving the kickoff. Hilliard got the ball on the 15-yard line and returned it 15 yards. Rusnack circled and for five and Hilliard added another at the opposite end. Greensburg was off-sides and penalized five yards. Trump plowed into the line for four yards. Rusnack went off tackle for four more and then Trump bucketed again, gaining five, making a first down. Hilliard gained only two more and Trump stopped with only one yard. Rusnack failed to gain and Trump punted. The ball rolled to Greensburg's one-yard line and Ross recovered the ball. McCann punted out to Rusnack on Greensburg's 16-yard line. Wilhelm got one yard. Trump made a forward pass to Stillwagon that the latter developed into a beauty. With the ball falling short, "Stilly" fell towards it and caught it just as it appeared to be grounded. Wilhelm went through for one yard and then Trump tossed another forward. It was deflected by a Greensburg back and then as it fell Rusnack caught it to his bosom and fell over the goal line. Trump failed to kick the goal.

It took six minutes and 20 seconds to make the score and during that time Greensburg had the ball only once—long enough to kick it.

Greensburg did practically the same thing on the next kick-off. Receiving, the visitors carried the ball directly down the field, aided by their big full-back, McCann, who got away around end for long runs.

The Brown and White scored one more touchdown in the first half and the period ended, 11-6.

In the second half the first score came so quick as to be demoralizing in its effect. Trump kicked off and the ball was returned to the Greensburg 40-yard line. A forward pass, McCann to Ross, covered 40 more yards and the receiver raced the remaining 20 yards for a touchdown.

Another touchdown was made equally as easy, resulting after a long forward pass and then the visitors had to work for the other scores.

The work of Highbarger for Greensburg was outstanding. He was everywhere, in every play. The youth one time went through and blocked one of Trump's kicks, recovering the ball and running 20 yards for a touchdown. He broke up forward passes and made numerous tackles. Jobs was another visitor that made a strong impression. His line bucking was better than any displayed by his teammates.

The line-up:
Connellsville—A. E. Greensburg—39.
Stillwagon—L. E. Truxell

Shedline Notes.

There was a wonderfully large crowd at the game Saturday. Greensburg brought a big delegation along and for once the Cokers were so thick they were not outnumbered.

Greensburg rooters made a big impression by their sportsmanship. In the first quarter, after the locals had scored and were heading the contest, Bob Rusnack went out with a dislocated shoulder. Physicians remedied the trouble on the side-lines and it was necessary for the local star to walk past the visitors to get to his bench. The whole body clapped continuously as he went by and gave a cheer for him. The same thing occurred again when, after Wilhelm had been hurt, he arose to his feet and resumed play.

It was the first time in the memory of many that when the locals were behind the cheering section kept up a demand for more fight. It was their call from several hundred Coker throats that helped restore the morale of the team after two touchdowns had been made in rapid succession at the opening of the second half.

Hilliard got to start the game Saturday and he finished it. The youth has been doing good work. He learned a good lesson about discipline and steadiness in the early season that was worth-while, and he is profiting by it. He is giving his school a Coach Lerew his best and with a more year ahead of him, trying as he is now, he will be a most valuable man.

Dunbar Township comes on Thanksgiving Day. A victory over that team will mean the locals finished the season with a percentage of .500. That is a figure far higher than lots of people ever thought possible when they viewed the material at the opening of the year. It is the biggest tribute possible to Coach Lerew and Settle and to show their full appreciation of their mentors the team is going to win over the neighboring outfit.

Rupp, formerly of this city, made the touchdown by which Dickinson College defeated the University of Delaware at Franklin Field, Philadelphia, Saturday. Rupp made eight yards on plunges through the line. He made a first down, placing the ball within a foot of the goal line and on the next play went over for a touchdown.

The Cokers handled the ball far better than at Danora, in spite of the wet weather. Both sides used the forward pass to a far greater extent than fans anticipated.

The Dunbar Township game on Thanksgiving Day will finish the season for Connelville. It will also mark for themselves these boys are desperate in their determination to win by a big margin.

Umpires Fail to Notice

When a better idea the ball with one foot out of the batter's box, the penalty prescribed by the rule book is out. In recent years batters seem to be getting away with it and have been sleeping up to hit the ball before it breaks.

LAST WORD ON TITLE GAME TO BE GIVEN TODAY

In spite of the fact that the meeting in Uniontown Saturday night between Billy Long of Brownsville and John Penicillo of Connellsville, respective managers of the independent football teams of the two places, was to settle finally and for all the matter of a game between the teams for the county championship the final decision still rests in the balance. It is promised that fans will hear the last word today.

The matters have reached a point that is trying the patience of football fans. Not only are the people of the two county towns interested but those all over Fayette are interested.

According to those present at the debates between the managers the "loser representative status" is a matter of "principle" with the Tornadoes not to allow Brownsville a guarantee of $1,200 with a privilege of half the game receipts because these terms do not coincide with those reached last year when the locals went to Brownsville. Connellsville wants to give half the receipts. With Brownsville, it is evidently the money and not the principle.

Those feel and think both managers know, that half the receipts will easily exceed $1,200 and it is considered merely a loop-hole through which both are trying to escape a check.

Brownsville, it is claimed, is trying to clear of the Cokers because of the presence in the line-up of such men as Kock, Traxill, Carroll, Bye and Loughly.

The meeting broke up with the understanding that the final word would be given today.

SCOTSDALE ELEVEN HOLDS DONORA TO SINGLE TOUCHDOWN

Special to The Courier

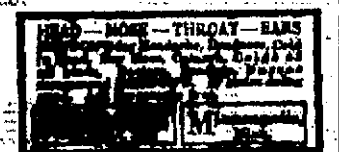

SCOTSDALE, Nov. 26.—Fighting hard every minute in a "sea of mud" Scottdale went down to defeat on Saturday afternoon at the Athletic Park at the hands of Donora, 6-0.

Donora was able to claim the victory by a margin of one touchdown. It was the same as in the previous games. Scottdale boys simply could not find themselves in the first quarter either in the offensive or defensive, and as a result they were scored upon before the first quarter was up. When McClurey, Donora's big, husky fullback, rushed the ball over the line after carrying it down the field single handed. After the score, Scottdale held Donora on even terms.

Had Donora been minus McClurey, it undoubtedly would have lost, because McClurey bore the brunt of the work, both on the offensive and defensive. By many spectators he was proclaimed the best fullback seen in action at Athletic Park this year.

For Scottdale, Sales played an outstanding game by gaining most of the ground, while Robins and Griffith stood out on the defense.

The line-up:
Scottdale—0. Donora—7.
Smith D. E. Smith
Bartlett L. T. McDowell
Roth L. G. Crull
Barkell G. Brooks

Robins R. T. Dull
Herry R. E. Mortel

BLACKBIRDS FEAST ON FISH

Make Raid on Trout Fishery. Established on an Estate in Scotland.

Those who study nature find that age-long traits and habits are being in some cases modified and in others entirely changed.

The writer knows of a case where a bird has its habits changed by altered conditions.

A trout fishery was established on an estate in Scotland. During certain seasons a large number of the fry or young trout are crowded together in shallow ponds, as their inclination is to keep together just where the water is shallow.

One day a blackbird, drinking at one of these ponds, got hold of a young trout, probably accidentally, but found it was excellent feeding. A blackbird does not by habit get its food from the water, but this particular one, having tasted a new source of food supply returned to it again and again.

The following season this bird had by some means been able to impart its newly-found knowledge to all the other blackbirds on the estate, and instead of one bird stealing the young fish, all the birds got into the way of doing so. The owner had other to shoot the blackbirds or give up trying to rear trout.

That an entire change of food is not detrimental may be proved by the fact that many of the cows kept in Norway are fed on fish, yet who will say that a cow's teeth were made for dealing with a diet of this sort?—London Times.

"Call it that if you like. That was the understanding between us. He's wedded on half of it. It seems, whether he has or the other or not I don't know. Anyhow, there's your paragon. And there's how much in love with you he is. Less than a thousand dollars' worth!"

She felt herself strangled, dropping, and she beat her way frantically back to breathless air. "I know you're a liar," she gasped, "and I believe you're lying about this. Then, more to the purpose, as her intelligence came to the rescue, "If that's what he is, why did you recommend him for the air service? And why did you go down to see him off and wish him luck the day his mechanic told you about me?"

The fierceness of her attack had won her a moment's breathing-space. She folded the check and tucked it into the bosom of her dress. "What are you doing with that?" he demanded. "I'm going to show it to him tomorrow; see what his side of the story is. Maybe he's what you say he is. I don't know—about anything, any more. But I want his own word for this."

With that she rose to leave him. He struggled to sit erect, but dropped back with an uncontrollable groan of anguish. "Never mind about that," he told her. "But listen to this so there won't be any mistake about it. Back last April, some time, I asked you to come and be my daughter. I'd got along without you all right till then. I can get along without you now. And if you see that dog again, even if it's only to match his word against mine, I'm through. Perhaps you'd better not tell him so till after he's married you. It might make some difference to him. I mean it, Trix. That's a promise I won't break, anyhow."

"Oh, well, at the end, all right, whatever I do, I'll do. George, we'd have come to smash about something, I suppose, if it hadn't been for him. We're too much alike; that's the trouble with us. Just a little more difference and we might have made it. I—I wish we had!"

Suddenly she turned away from him, feeling she couldn't bear the look in his face. "I guess I may as well go now," she added roughly. "No use dragging out the agony any longer, is there?"

She left the room swiftly without waiting for a reply, but a few minutes later, clad in a big fur coat he had given her before they went North and with her purse in the pocket of it, she disappeared in the doorway. She could perfectly well have taken this to be a chance and risk, but it was better drawn like this, and she needed all the support she could get. The little bar in the downtown hotel made it easy.

"You don't mean you're going now?" her father cried. "Not at this time of night! Where could you go?" She saw he didn't believe she meant it. "It isn't late," she said. "Not much after nine. And there are plenty of hotels. I've still got that good old original five hundred, you see. Most of it, I do mean it, Dad. I'm really going. It wouldn't do any good to wait till morning. It would only mean that we'd have another big fight—and they aren't good for you when you're like this."

She went over to the side of the room where he was, moving warily as she approached the bed, and, bending down, rang his bell. "Some farewell orders to Anson," was all the explanation she bestowed.

When the man answered the summons, she said, "I'm going away, Anson. Tell you to telephone Miss MacArthur. Tell her how things are and say I want her to come here and take charge till father's around again. And I think you'd better telephone the doctor, too. He said dad was to be quiet, and we haven't been very, so perhaps he'll be worse. That's all, I guess."

Anson hesitated, expecting, perhaps, some contradictory word from his employer, but none came, and he turned to go. "Wait a minute," Trix called, and he went back to her. "I've called, and he said he'd come back and took it. You've been awfully nice to me, Anson."

"Good-by, Miss Beatrice."

He bowed gravely, without the slightest change of manner, and went away to telephone. "That's the kind of person to be," she commented, as she turned, waiting, to her father.

She wanted a breath and a gulp or two before she could be sure of any other to go on with. "It's his you goodness," she said, with another look—nearly sob, this time—"If I wasn't afraid you'd write my back if you got hold of me. Because I do love you, Dad. I guess I always will, whatever happens. I'm glad I came last April—and I'm sorry I've got to go away now."

"You don't have to," he asserted. "This is all your own doing." But she merely said good-by and went out. She took a taxi to the hotel where she'd checked her hand-bag, with the idea of stopping there for the night, but telephoned to Mrs. Henderson, if the room she'd looked at this afternoon was still vacant, and came down and occupied them tonight. She couldn't promise to visit them permanently until she'd shown them to her husband, but she'd say for the night's lodging, anyhow. Mrs. Henderson was agreeable, and within half-an-hour Beatrice was installed in what might become her home.

She fell asleep at once, having had, since she'd awakened in the morning, a sleepless night, a pretty full day. But later, in the dead of night, she found herself broad awake, and unable for a few minutes to remember what she was in a light mind, and was hanging the loose white-curtain curtains. The bed was cold, and she drew into unconscious meditation.

The thought of sharing that bed with George Burns presented itself to her as a hostile—impossible. She must have been clean out of her head to have entertained it; to have come to have for him in a place like this. What sleep she managed to get during the rest of the night was troubled by dreams and half-awakings, and by morning she was pretty well washed out.

An hour before the time George was expected she was down at the hotel front, anxiously looking across the hall for the place to put in an appearance. It finally came, and when George stepped out and saw her he blurted out and saw her in his arms. There, in public, they had always been careful to give their meetings a casual air, but this embrace was as much at his initiative as at hers.

She told him that she had finally broken with her father. "I've had an awful row with dad," she told him, when he'd drawn her aside to make way for the activities of the crew. "He says I'm not his daughter any more. He told me to tell you that because it might make a difference. Does it?"

"I should say it did," he cried, pulling her up in his arms again. "Does it mean you're going to marry me, now, Trix?"

"I told him, blissfully, that it did. 'That's the minute it was decided,' I've already got a place for us to live," she added, and she felt him give a sob at that. "I slept there alone last night."

A hurried visit to the city hall reminded them that the day was Thanksgiving and that the public offices were all closed. A visit to the superintendent secured them permission for Trix to make the trip to Cleveland with George the next day, where they could be married, and then suddenly they both remembered that they were ravenously hungry. They jumped into a taxi, their fourth that day.

She directed the chauffeur to one of her father's favorite restaurants, and here they spent two unregarded hours, silent and talkative by turns, sometimes frankly holding hands across the board, sometimes, for fun, distantly ceremonious.

When he got out his pocketbook to pay the bill she laughed in a way that made him ask her why. "I thought of something I'd forgotten," she said. "Something I promised dad I'd ask you about. It's that thousand-dollar check he gave you the night you brought me home last summer."

He flushed bright red, and for an answer, drew out of his pocket a sealed envelope, which he turned over to her. Inside was one thousand dollars in new bills. "That's his dirty money," said George. "After I got it I became rattled; thought you had gone back on me, and cashed the check. Then I woke up and have been waiting for a chance ever since to return it to him."

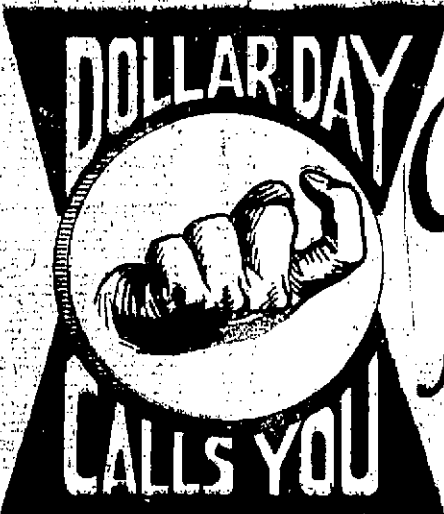

Trix tucked the money away into her coat pocket. "I don't see why it should ever go back. A thousand dollars is a lot of money. I'll just write him and tell him you paid it to me and decide later whether to send it back to him." George laughed at her woman's reasoning.

They both fell silent after this, and presently she asked him what he was thinking about. "About tomorrow's flight," he reluctantly confessed. "I never was scared of a trip before. But when I think what it would mean if anything went wrong—"

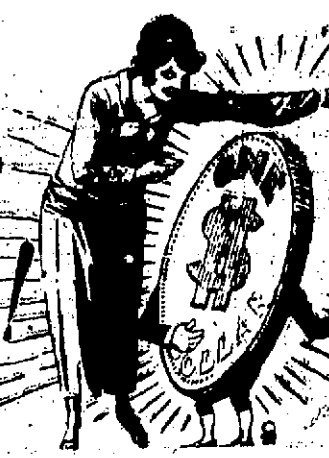

"You're tired," she interrupted. "That's all the matter with you. No wonder, doing double work like this. Let's forget it, for tonight, anyway. Tell me what you like to do. Let's go and have a look at the place I've picked out for us to live. See what you think of it. It looked pretty good to me last night, when I was thinking how we'd fix it up."

PARTY STRENGTH AND POLICIES

By JOHN T. ADAMS,

Chairman of the Republican National Committee

The next would have been so optimistic 30 months ago as to predict that today America would be enjoying the tremendous prosperity which is being shared by every section and every interest.

That all this has come about is not accidental. It is due to the policies of the Republican party as written into law by a Republican Congress and put into practice by a Republican administration.

The important political feature of this is the fact that the improvement has been due to the cooperation between the executive and legislative branches of the government. The program of reconstruction and economy was put into effect because it was a program to which a political party was committed and for which it was held responsible by the public. Had the welfare of the American people been at the mercy of groups and factions during the last two years and a half it is not likely they would have made any greater progress toward public economy, and general prosperity than the peoples of Europe. The indecision and instability, the unbalanced budgets and business uncertainties which still mark European affairs is in a large measure due to the lack of virile, responsible party government in European nations.

The United States has always been a government of strong political parties through which the people speak and which have been held accountable to the people for carrying out definite programs. We have progressed as a nation because we have been unusually free from attempts at class and factional government.

The good results of 30 months of Republican policies are now evident on every hand. The improvement in agricultural, industrial and commercial affairs since March, 1925, has been remarkable. No one
